A culture is a symbol of civilization. It is well-known fact that the best agents of education are museums and galleries.

There are 5 cultural organizations in England: British Museum, National Gallery, Tate Gallery, Natural History Museum and Science Museum. According to the chart we can see three columns of people's attendance for three separate years: 2013, 2015, 2014. The data shows us that every year all organizations have attendance about 1 mln and over.

Every year rates of museums and galleries change, mostly in positive side, but there are also two museums, in which number of visitors decrease: Natural History Museum and Science Museum. Their rates decreased in almost 2 times, while the number of visitors of other organizations increased in 2 times. That fact shows us that museums which introduced admission and have educational characteristic are substantial. According to the chart we can state that the most popular museum of England is British Museum, which people's attendance for the 2014 is 5.6 mln. Talking about galleries, we notice that National Gallery is more popular than Tate Gallery.

I respectably threat to all cultural organizations, but we have to admit that educational museums, which popularity was drawn on history, are not popular as they were before. My recommendations to the museum boards of directors are to create interesting programmes for visitors and to make
